PRINT ADVERTISING EFFECTIVENESS

Advertising has a communicative effect as it helps to develop relationships between the manufacturer of the product (service) and the consumer. Print advertising affects emotions through visual perception, and, according to statistics, 60–80% of people are visual learners. Advertising in print media affects readers through graphic images, colour, and verbal information (text) with all these aspects being equally important.

According to numerous studies, written (printed) information is perceived best. It is obvious that this type of advertising has several advantages over any other.

1. Print ads are available at any time. It means that the customer always has an opportunity to revert to such advertising. It is also important to consider duration of the advertising contact as customer can read, think, compare options and return to the advertising.
2. Each media has its own specific audience which means high effectiveness of targeted advertising.
3. There is a high probability of the “long-term effect” when customers buy long after the advertisement was published.

At that, print advertising remains respectful to the consumer. Advertising in the magazine does not interrupt reading, does not bother readers and is not as annoying as, for example, advertising in the electronic media. Average buyer sees about a hundred ad units per week (and most of them are simply ignored) and reads only one to three editions. Print advertising can afford to be much more informative than advertising in the electronic media holding customer’s attention much longer. TV advertisement retention at 100 GRP is 4% while in print media it equals to 11.5%. Moreover, in the latter case the level of advertising understanding is much higher.

FIVE REASONS WHY ADVERTISING IN PHILOSOPHY OF LEISURE IS EFFECTIVE

1. Targeting highly educated and wealthy people.
2. A unique distribution system in Moscow, St. Petersburg and on a private train Megapolis running between Moscow and St. Petersburg.
3. Low-pressure advertising. The magazine is distributed in the leisure areas where visitors themselves are interested in reading interesting content while waiting.
4. Contemporary design, high quality printing.
5. Magazine contents covers a wide audience of different ages and interests. We always provide relevant information.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITIES

The project will allow notifying potential consumers about special actions, assortment and prices for various products and services in advance. In their turn, advertisers will receive an advertising platform for communication with their potential buyers.

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

For the most effective advertising, we use a variety of modern opportunities, i.e. special inserts, non-standard attachments, inserts, sampling, sponsorship of sections, placement of logos on the advertising spaces of the magazine and other formats upon agreement.

We also use native technologies of promotion when the brand of the advertiser is fully integrated into the content in the form of a photo shoot or a thematic review.

To make advertising in the magazine look attractive, we use modern printing technologies such as selective varnish, perforation, embossing, etc.
